Eight days they won't meet the deadline and at that point it's either going to the SCOTUS or tossed to the house to appoint electors to vote, and if it goes that way there's more red states than blue.

I don't see how lifetime judges would want to vote against mathematical certainties and live with putting a pedophile rerard who's about to die in the oval office. But who knows. Got my bag lunch n thermos

The problem here is you get a shitty outcome either way. Not the real (((problem))) I'm talking about. It's the fact if Biden wins, the civil war would start that very day and there will be actual bloodshed, but with that the union would finally crumble and balkanize. The other is if Trump wins, there will be bloodshed but the republic would probably survive it, but we're still filled with all these fucking commies.

Easy big fella. I'm a total Trump guy and I'd give anything to see him stick it up all their asses. Even with all the cases going right now, if the electors meet and Biden gets 270, what then? I don't know how legal challenges will work after the electors meet. No one does. As I've said before in this thread, we're in uncharted waters.

What happened in the election is disgusting and I'm hoping against hope they all pay for what they did. But these people never get punished for anything, so I won't believe it until I see it.

I know that if no one gets 270 it goes to the House via state delegations, but I don't know if elector votes can get tossed after they've been made, that situation I don't think has ever occurred.

You don't have to rationalize ur opinions to me buddy I'm commenting on this opinion I'm seeing on here, the faggy news sites, and the tards on twitter that somehow fraud gets a pass just as long as you do it in a timely manner. Like if we just push it through fast enough without people noticing on time, then there's nothing they can do after the deadline!

That may work with passing bills into law but if someone is sworn in, and then its proven they cheated, we don't just throw our hands in the air and go "UPPPPP, it's too late now! We didn't catch it in time."

There will be riots regardless but this outcome will decide their severity.

If real, it came from someone working in Langley.

I gotta catch up on all this tomorrow at work.

Driving across state lines? The only people going to jail will be the facilitators, anyone that isn't a congressman, mayor or governor ain't seeing shit.
